

Overview of Conference:

A wide range of topics will be covered, all relating to how compassionate care can support goals like workforce well-being, both long-term care resident and patient experience, safety, quality, and innovation, as well as additional content to support caregivers and leaders during this challenging time.

Participants will learn how healthcare organizations around the world are improving quality, lowering costs, and strengthening patients' and providers' experience using compassionate, collaborative care. Our vision is to form a powerful community where every participant plays an integral role in sharing ideas, stimulating new thinking, and provoking the change that will better our healthcare system.

Through interactive experiential sessions with experts from diverse care settings and communities, this innovative conference focuses on fostering compassionate leaders across all healthcare professions and roles. Participants will leave the conference having gained inspiration as well as the knowledge & skills to improve care quality and outcomes, resident/patient experience, and workforce well-being through compassion and collaboration.

Track 1: Empathy & Compassionate Care

Track 2: Diversity, Equity, & Inclusion

Track 3: Economics & the Ethics of Healthcare

Learning Objectives:

At the end of this conference, participants will learn to:

- Discuss the effects of empathy and compassionate care not only on the patient, but also the caregiver.
- Discuss how compassionate and inclusive conversations foster a culture of inclusion both within the work environments as well as in direct patient care.
- Discuss how an organization can strategically and purposefully provide structural care for its employees and how to advocate for better care.

General Session 1: Compassion Resilience for Caregiver

Led by: Missy Wise and Erika Newhard

This interactive session will introduce Compassion Resilience and its relevance to older adult caregivers. Individuals will also learn about the cycle of compassion fatigue and how it impacts their ability to care for others. Through discussion and breakout activities, individuals will explore drivers of fatigue and resilience.

Learning Objectives:

- 1. Learn what Compassion Resilience is.
- 2. Identify the stages of compassion fatigue and its impact on one's work.
- 3. Identify drivers of fatigue and resilience.

Keynote Speaker: "Compassionomics and the Wonder Drug": The Revolutionary Scientific Evidence that CARING Makes a Difference

Led by: Dr. Stephen Trzeciak

Stephen Trzeciak, MD, MPH, physician scientist and co-other of the book "Compassionomics: The Revolutionary Scientific Evidence That Caring Makes a Difference." Trzeciak will explore eye-opening data reflecting that compassion could be a wonder drug for the 21st Century. Now, for the first time, a rigorous review of the science, coupled with captivating stories from the front lines of medicine, demonstrates that human connection in health care matters in astonishing ways.

You will see compelling evidence that:

- Compassion has vast benefits for patients across a wide variety of conditions
- Missed opportunities for compassion can have devastating health effects
- Compassion can help reverse the cost crisis in health care
- Compassion can be an antidote for burnout among health care providers
- Forty seconds of compassion can save a life

General Session 2: The Importance of Compassion in the Journey of Aging

Led by: Lisa Hoffman and Mimi Leinbach

In this session, we will discuss what role a program like Pathstones can play in adding more compassion to the medical, psychological, social and spiritual needs of older adults. Could Pathstones and other programs like it be a model in recognizing and responding to the systems that may be perceived as failing to meet many of the compassion needs of a person? The session will explore whether incorporating the "whole person" components of physical, psychological, spiritual, and social aspects lend themselves to the concept of palliative care. That is, care that is not curative but geared toward making living more comfortable, more tolerable, and more fulfilling.

Learning Objectives:

- 1. How a model of compassionate care allows individuals to improve the quality of their aging experience.
- 2. How the Pathstones model, and others like it, respond and adapt when changes to health or daily life occur.
- 3. How valuable compassion is to the journey of aging.

Closing General Session: Compassion Resilience Toolkit

Led by: Missy Wise and Erika Newhard

Participants will learn how to access the Compassion Resilience toolkit. The toolkit will serve as a resource for individuals and can be accessed by clicking here. As a result of this presentation, individuals will gain the knowledge and skills to better care for themselves, allowing them to become more compassionate and care for others.

Learning Objectives:

- 1. Learn about the existing Compassion Resilience toolkit, and how to use it as a resource.
- 2. Be able to identify drivers of fatigue and drivers of resilience as it pertains to one's locus of control.
- 3. Take away knowledge and skills to prioritize self-care, resulting in more compassionate caregivers.

Breakout Session 1:

Track 1: Compassion in Long Term Care: Some Initial Thoughts

Led by: Dr. Joseph E. Vincent & Dr. Stephen E. Lammers

In this session we will look at practices that can allow for more compassion to be displayed in long term care such as: 1. Time to attend to the patients over time, making relationships possible. Attending is not only caring for bodily needs but listening to patients. Listening is a skill that is learned and fostered, especially when patients cannot be cured. 2. Having well-trained staff who are valued. 3. A setting that allows staff to flourish. Lastly, the attendees will be invited to participate in hands-on learning activities, including a case study involving an elderly patient.

Track 2: Open & Affirming: True Inclusion for the Church & Community

Led by: Steve Ohnsman

This session will outline the process, problems, and victories of becoming the first Open & Affirming congregation for 40 miles in every direction of Reading, PA. We will discuss culture change and the effect this process had to change the congregation's way of doing church.

Learning Objectives:

- 1. Learn some basic ways to institute change in a congregation,
- 2. Prepare for backlash from other Christian groups,
- 3. Look at the joy this kind of movement of the Spirit can bring to the congregation and the larger community around it.

Track 3: Caregivers Are Fine Now That the Pandemic is Over, Right? No, They Are Not, And Here is How You Can Help

Led by: Michelle Gaugler

A very bright light was shown on healthcare in the past three years through the pandemic as healthcare struggled to keep up with the ever-changing landscape of information, regulation and the impact to operations and labor. Three years later, as the pandemic evolves into an endemic, as regulations relax and the world expects life to return to "normal," the expectation is for the life of healthcare providers and caregivers to return to normal; however, their lives were forever changed and will never be normal again. In fact, the incidence of depression, anxiety and trauma remain high among healthcare workers. It remains crucial to keep the topic of caring for caregivers in the forefront of conversation, process and policy for organizations who employ caregivers.

Learning Objectives:

- 1. Understand what shaped the healthcare worker's current work experience based on their previous 3 years,
- 2. Understand what the experience has yielded in terms of personal, interpersonal and organizational outcomes,
- 3. Gain practical tips on how an organization can strategically and purposefully provide structural care for its employees

Breakout Session 2:

Track 1: Navigating the River of Grief

Led by: Rev. Dr. Bonnie Bates

This workshop will explore a model of grief based on a metaphor of a river, with rapids and shoals, inlets and switchbacks. Rather than a linear process, grief encounters twists and turns, ups and downs. We will explore supports needed from pastors and congregations.

Learning Objectives:

- 1. Explore grief processes.
- 2. Examine the means through which grief ebbs and flows as the process continues.
- 3. Look at supports which might assist those in mourning.

Track 2: Session 2: Marketing with Compassion

Led by: Phoebe Marketing Team: Donna Schudel, Lynann Everett, Rachel Cavotta

Marketing to senior citizens using compassion requires a thoughtful and empathetic approach that acknowledges their unique needs, concerns, and experiences. Adopting a compassionate strategy can establish a genuine connection with this demographic, build trust, and create a positive brand image. This includes breaking out of the traditional media mold and introducing additional ways to connect with our audience through social media and non-traditional forms of marketing and advertising.

Learning Objectives:

- 1. Be able to identify advertising and social media campaigns that show compassion and empathy.
- 2. Learn how diversity, equity, and inclusion are essential when advertising and how to showcase that your organization supports these initiatives.
- 3. How to use compassion to drive lead generation. Compare & contrast website design, photographs, advertising campaigns. How to create engaging social media.

Track 3: Session 2: Geriatric Emergency Rooms: Reality vs. Aspirations

Led by: Karen E. Joseph-Kent, PhD

Despite the aging population representing the second highest utilization patterns for emergency care, specialized services for this population are lacking. Approximately 10 years ago, Geriatric Emergency Department (GED) Guidelines were published and endorsed by four major medical organizations. The GED Guidelines identified the complex needs of the older emergency department (ED) patient and current best practices, to promote more cost-effective and patient-centered care. The recommendations are extensive and most EDs have neither the resources nor the administrative support to provide this additional service.

Learning Objectives:

- 1. This presentation will review the current best practices for Emergency Care,
- 2. Share success stories of well-established programs, and Identify resources to develop programming, and
- 3. Identify resources to develop geriatric ED services and identify opportunities for long term care providers to support the establishment of programs.
